Chairman
Florida Federal Judicial Nominating Commission

Dear John:

The President of the United States selects nominees to the federal judiciary when there is vacancy. The selection of U.S. Attorneys and U.S. Marshals is also made by the President, and they serve at the President's pleasure. It is customary for the President to consult with members of the United States Senate from the State in question before nominating individuals to serve in these positions.

The President has requested that Senators recommend potential nominees to fill federal district court vacancies. He has asked us to provide these names as soon as possible.

Therefore, at this time we ask that the Florida Federal Judicial Nominating Commission ("Commission") undertake its selection process and identify finalists for the following position: U.S. Marshal for the Southern District of Florida.

For this vacancy, we ask that you provide the names of three finalists who are duly selected through the process provided for by the Commission Rules by August 15, 2011. We look forward to receiving your recommendations.

Sincerely,

BILL NELSON

MARCO RUBIO
